OPENING EXHIBITION

Cézanne in Provence

January 29–May 7, 2006
West Building, Main Floor

The National Gallery of Art is the premiere venue for the principal international exhibition marking 2006 as the centenary of the death of Paul Cézanne (1839–1906), considered to be a founding father of modern art.

This major exhibition of some 120 of the artist's greatest oil paintings and watercolors is the first to explore his complex emotional engagement with his native Provence through some of his most original and compelling landscapes; penetrating portraits of friends, employees, and family members; and paintings from the monumental series known as the Bathers. Works depicting such scenes as Cézanne's family home of Jas de Bouffan, Montagne Sainte-Victoire, the Mediterranean coast at L'Estaque, the dramatic quarry at Bibémus, and his famous studio at Les Lauves are on loan from public and private collections throughout Europe and the United States.

The exhibition also launches the yearlong celebration "Cézanne 2006" in the United States and France. Aix-en-Provence, Cézanne's city of birth, celebrates the centennial with numerous events including the reopening of the Musée Granet, one of France's top regional museums, where the exhibition will be on view June 9 through September 17, 2006. Several key sites including the Jas de Bouffan, the Bibémus quarry, and the studio at Les Lauves will open to the public.

The exhibition is a tribute to the memory of the late, preeminent Cézanne scholar John Rewald. In studying the sites in Provence and their significance for Cézanne, the exhibition's organizers benefited from Rewald's Cézanne papers in the Gallery Archives and the presence of the original site photographs in the National Gallery of Art Library Image Collections.

Organized by the National Gallery of Art, Washington, the Musée Granet/Communauté du Pays d'Aix, Aix-en-Provence, and the Réunion des musées nationaux, Paris.

This exhibition is made possible by a generous grant from the DaimlerChrysler Corporation Fund.

The exhibition is supported by an indemnity from the Federal Council on the Arts and the Humanities.

Dada

February 19–May 14, 2006
East Building, Mezzanine

Dada is the first major museum exhibition in the United States to explore in depth this influential avant-garde art movement. Responding to the disasters of World War I and an emerging modern media and machine culture, Dada artists proposed innovative strategies of art-making including collage, montage, assemblage, chance, "readymades," performance, and media pranks, profoundly shaping the course of twentieth-century art. More than forty artists are represented, including Hans Arp, Marcel Duchamp, Max Ernst, George Grosz, Raoul Hausmann, John Heartfield, Hannah Höch, Francis Picabia, Man Ray, Hans Richter, Kurt Schwitters, Sophie Taeuber, and Tristan Tzara.

The exhibition presents the robust variety of Dada art that emerged between 1916 and 1924. More than four hundred works, including paintings, sculptures, photographs, collages, prints, original Dada films, and sound poems, are organized around the movement's major city centers of Zurich, Berlin, Hannover, Cologne, New York, and Paris. The design of the exhibition suggests the First International Dada Fair in Berlin, with works arranged as they were unveiled in 1920; Schwitters' Merzbau, a large collage structure originally created in his home in Hannover; and Duchamp's New York studio where his readymades were chaotically displayed.

A brief silent film comprising World War I-era footage screens continuously at the entrance to the exhibition. Its depictions of the impact of this first modern war provide a historical context for the exhibition.

Organized by the National Gallery of Art, Washington, and the Centre Pompidou, Paris, in collaboration with The Museum of Modern Art, New York.

The exhibition is made possible through the generous support of the Anna-Maria and Stephen Kellen Foundation and the Catherine B. Reynolds Foundation.

Additional support for the exhibition has been provided by the Annenberg Foundation and Thomas G. Klarner.

The brochure is made possible by Aaron and Barbara Levine and Pro Helvetia Arts Council of Switzerland.

The film is made possible by the HRH Foundation.

The exhibition is supported by an indemnity from the Federal Council on the Arts and the Humanities.

CONTINUING EXHIBITION

Audubon's Dream Realized: Selections from The Birds of America

Through March 26, 2006
West Building, Central Gallery

John James Audubon (1785–1851) produced some of the most beautiful and lifelike depictions of birds ever created. This exhibition presents one of the artist's oil paintings, the superb Osprey and Weakfish (1829), a new gift to the Gallery from Richard Mellon Scaife, as well as fifty of the artist's hand-colored etchings selected from the Gallery's early edition of The Birds of America (1827–1838), one of only two known complete sets preserved in their original, unbound state.

Some of the set's most celebrated and outstanding prints are on view, including American Flamingo (1838), Carolina Parrot (1827), and Ivory-Billed Woodpecker (1829).

In conjunction with the education division of the National Gallery of Art, the Audubon Naturalist Society in Chevy Chase, Maryland is offering a bird-watching walk on January 21 and February 18, where participants may view birds portrayed by Audubon. To register, call (301) 652-9188, ext. 10.

Organized by the National Gallery of Art, Washington.

This exhibition is made possible by General Dynamics.

OPENING EXHIBITION

Amorous Intrigues and Painterly Refinement: The Art of Frans van Mieris

February 26–May 21, 2006
West Building, Dutch Cabinet Galleries

Praised by contemporaries as the most important of all Leiden fijn-schilders (masters of fine painting), Frans van Mieris (1635–1681) is best known for his innovative interior scenes and elegant portraits. Although Van Mieris painted some allegories and portraits, most of his works are thoughtful yet light-hearted genre scenes often painted on copper, depicting charlatans, peasants, elegantly dressed ladies, soldiers, and pets in works that frequently explore themes of courtship and seduction.

Van Mieris' pictures were widely admired by contemporaries for their exquisite rendering of materials, and his works influenced many fellow painters including Vermeer. Intimate in scale, the masterpieces rarely measure more than fifteen square inches. The works were selected in consultation with Van Mieris scholar Otto Naumann, whose catalogue contribution appears alongside writings by other leading scholars.

Organized by the Royal Picture Gallery Mauritshuis, The Hague, in association with the National Gallery of Art, Washington.

The exhibition is made possible by anonymous donors to the National Gallery of Art.

The exhibition is supported by an indemnity from the Federal Council on the Arts and the Humanities.

A twelve-minute introductory film about Van Mieris' art, produced by Bobcat TV for the Royal Picture Gallery Mauritshuis, screens in the West Building Micro Gallery. In Dutch with English subtitles.

The film is made possible by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Kaplan.

Catalogue: hardcover, $50

CLOSING EXHIBITION

Monumental Sculpture from Renaissance Florence: Ghiberti, Nanni di Banco, and Verrocchio at Orsanmichele

Through February 26, 2005
West Building, Main Floor

Three monumental masterpieces of Italian Renaissance sculpture by Lorenzo Ghiberti (1378–1455), Nanni di Banco (c. 1380/85–1421), and Andrea del Verrocchio (1435–1488) have traveled to the National Gallery of Art to celebrate the completion of their restoration under the supervision of the Opificio delle Pietre Dure, Florence's premier national restoration center. It is the first time that major works by Ghiberti and Nanni di Banco have been on view in the United States.

Organized by the National Gallery of Art, Washington, and the Opificio delle Pietre Dure, Florence, in collaboration with the Soprintendenza per i Beni Architettonici e per il Paesaggio and the Soprintendenza al Patrimonio Storico Artistico e Etno-antropologico, Florence.

The exhibition is supported by an indemnity from the Federal Council on the Arts and the Humanities.

CLOSING EXHIBITION

The Prints of Félix Buhot: Impressions of City and Sea

Through February 20, 2006
West Building, Ground Floor

French artist Félix-Hilaire Buhot (1847–1898) created impressionist prints notable for their inventiveness in depicting conditions such as rain, snow, mist, and fog. The Gallery maintains an outstanding collection of over one hundred Buhot prints and drawings, many rare, from which this exhibition's selections are drawn. Approximately sixty-four prints and four drawings closely examine Buhot's experimental techniques through his two most frequent subjects: the city and the sea. His city prints depict the grand public squares and streets of Paris and London; those of the sea show passing tempests, foreboding skies, and pervasive melancholy.

Organized by the National Gallery of Art, Washington.

CLOSING EXHIBITION

Winslow Homer in the National Gallery of Art

Through February 20, 2006
East Building, Mezzanine

The National Gallery of Art owns an important group of oil paintings and watercolors by Winslow Homer (1836–1910), one of America's most distinguished and best-known artists. From early oils such as the Civil War scene Home, Sweet Home (1863) to the late watercolor masterworks including Key West, Hauling Anchor (1903), all phases of Homer's career are represented in this exhibition of works selected from the Gallery's own collection.

Organized by the National Gallery of Art, Washington.

Sponsored by Siemens.

programs

Film Programs

For details: www.nga.gov/programs/film.htm

William Eggleston in the Real World

The Washington premiere of Michael Almereyda's new portrait of photographer William Eggleston takes place January 5–8. Eggleston appears in the film “imperiously and unapologetically himself,” according to the director. Most of the action occurs in the present day as the camera candidly follows Eggleston at his work, but this portrait is also a reflection on the art of photography and its position vis-à-vis modern art.

Selections from the International Festival of Films on Art

On January 7, 14, and 15, the National Gallery of Art honors this festival devoted to the art documentary, now in its twenty-third year. René Rozon, the director of the festival, introduces the program, sponsored jointly with the Canadian Embassy.

James Benning: Recent Works

Minimalist avant-garde filmmaker James Benning introduces two companion films made last year: Thirteen Lakes and Ten Skies. With the sparest of means, Benning's works expresses a universe of ideas about nature, life styles, cities, the industrial subculture, and wide-open spaces. Film historian Scott McDonald interviews Benning after the screenings.

Orson Welles in Spain: The Well

A new Swedish-produced feature documentary on Orson Welles' perennial love affair with Spain receives its Washington premiere on January 29. Mixing personal reflection with original interviews and archival footage, the film is an homage not only to Welles, but also to Spanish landscape, music, art, and a range of deeply rooted cultural traditions.

Orson Welles in Spain: Chimes at Midnight and F for Fake

Two late works by Orson Welles are shown on January 28. Chimes at Midnight, shot entirely in rural Spain, focuses the narrative of a dying England on the Shakespearean characters of Falstaff and Prince Hal. F for Fake, Welles' provocative essay on the possibilities for fakery in film and in art, suggests that movies have become the art form of the last half-century precisely because of their innate capacity to handle the unreal.

Four American Independents

Two independent films from the late 1960s and early 1970s receive Washington premieres at the National Gallery on January 21. Released in 1967 but seldom viewed in its original version, J.L. Anderson's Spring Night Summer Night is set in a rustic, hard-scrabble region of southeastern Ohio. An early work on video (now remastered to digital format) by photographer William Eggleston, Stranded in Canton was shot on the streets of Memphis in 1973. Both works are contemplative views of a lost world unveiled in moody black and white cinematography.

On January 22 two new independent films, also receiving Washington premieres, explore the worlds of conceptual artist Grahame Weinbren and avant-garde philosopher Slavoj Žižek. Frames focuses on artist Weinbren, a pioneer of interactive cinema and installation art who plays with narrative, while Žižek follows this self-described Lacanian philosopher as he goes on a lecture tour to Rio de Janeiro, Boston, and New York, always playing to capacity crowds.

Cézanne in Provence

Cézanne in Provence chronicles the life and work of Paul Cézanne through his masterpieces showcased in the National Gallery of Art exhibition currently on view. The film revisits the Provence landscapes the artist rendered in some of his most memorable works. Cézanne's own words, as well as interviews with the exhibition's curator and other experts, illuminate both the artist's deep connection with his native Aix-en-Provence and his profound influence on modern art. This one-hour documentary, filmed in high definition (HDTV) by Emmy Award-winning director Jackson Frost and produced by WETA in Washington, premieres at the National Gallery of Art on February 25 at 2:30.

Provence et Marseille

This series, starting February 4, includes a variety of works and themes relating to Provence and Marseille in the early decades of the twentieth century, including films by French directors Jean Epstein, Jean Renoir, and Marcel Carné, and early views of the port city of Marseille.

Stolen

This new documentary by Rebecca Dreyfus and Albert Maysles focuses on the well-publicized March 1990 theft of several important paintings, including Vermeer's The Concert, from Boston's Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum. The film tracks the key figures involved in recovery efforts and examines the business of professional art theft, with its unique characters and dilemmas. Carefully interwoven throughout the narrative is biographical information about Isabella Stewart Gardner and the priceless art collection she amassed. The film screens February 26 at 4:30.

The Collection

The National Gallery of Art, one of the world's preeminent museums, was created for the people of the United States of America by a joint resolution of Congress accepting the gift of financier, public servant, and art collector Andrew W. Mellon in 1937. European and American paintings, sculpture, works on paper, photographs, and decorative arts are displayed in the collection galleries and Sculpture Garden. Temporary exhibitions of art from countries and cultures throughout the world are presented on a regular basis.

Works of art on paper and photographs that are not on view may be seen by appointment on weekdays; call (202) 842-6380 for prints and drawings or (202) 842-6144 for photographs.

Library

library.nga.gov

The Gallery's library collection of more than 330,000 books and periodicals on the history, theory, and criticism of art and architecture emphasizes Western art from the Middle Ages to the present, and American art from the colonial era to the present. Adult researchers may gain access to the library by calling (202) 842-6511. The library is closed weekends and all federal holidays.

Location

The Gallery is located on Constitution Avenue between Third and Ninth Streets NW. Nearby Metro-rail stations are located at Judiciary Square (red line), Archives/Navy Memorial (yellow and green lines), and Smithsonian (blue and orange lines). Metrobus stops are located on Fourth Street, Seventh Street, and Pennsylvania Avenue.
