

GLOBAL SPONSOR

Continuing our long tradition of support for the arts, Bank of America is pleased to be the Global Sponsor of Roy Lichtenstein: A Retrospective in Chicago, Washington, and London. We look forward to working once again with three leading arts institutions: the Art Institute of Chicago and the National Gallery of Art in the United States and Tate Modern in London, and to being part of one of the most comprehensive examinations of Lichtenstein's work in recent years. We are pleased to be involved with each institution's plans for outreach that will make the exhibition available to students, teachers, and families.

Bank of America supports more than 5,000 arts institutions around the world each year. This element of our Corporate Social Responsibility program remains a key focus, and includes financial support so that programs and institutions may flourish, including several innovative signature initiatives that have become synonymous with our company. The program is designed to engage individuals, organizations, communities, and cultures in creative ways to build mutual respect and understanding; to strengthen institutions that contribute to local economies; to engage and provide benefits to our employees; and to fulfill our responsibilities as a major corporation with global reach and an impact on economies and societies throughout the world.

7

We hope you are inspired by Roy Lichtenstein: A Retrospective to consider how art can transcend time and place to create meaningful human connections, and that you are able to share this special experience with family and friends. We also hope that you will value the opportunity to share a rich cultural experience with hundreds of thousands of people from around the globe.

Brian T. Moynihan
Chief Executive Officer
Bank of America