CONCERT FOR SERVICEMEN

at

The National Gallery of Art

Through the generosity of Mrs. Matthew John Whittall, the National Gallery of Art will present in the Lecture Hall on the Ground Floor, a concert by the Budapest String Quartet at 3:30 P.M. on Sunday, May 31, 1942.

This concert has been planned for men in the service and their friends. The program will last approximately one hour. The selections to be played have been popular on other programs given by this internationally famous quartet.

Servicemen attending this concert are urged to be prompt since the doors of the Lecture Hall will be closed as soon as the concert begins. Members of the public will be permitted to take all unoccupied seats after the performance of the first number.
