WASHINGTON, January 25, 1953. David E. Finley, Director of the National Gallery of Art, announces the opening to the public of the EXHIBITION OF JAPANESE PAINTING AND SCULPTURE, sponsored by the Government of Japan, on Sunday afternoon, January 25th at four o'clock. There will be a preview for government officials and other invited guests at three o'clock. The exhibition will remain on view at the National Gallery of Art through February 25th. The Collection will then be shown at the following museums during 1953: The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, March 26th through May 10th; the Seattle Art Museum, July 9th through August 9th; The Art Institute of Chicago, September 15th through October 15th; and the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, November 15th through December 15th.
Mr. Masao Ishizawa, Chief Curator of the Japanese Exhibition, who is one of six Japanese curators accompanying the works of art, stated today that "this is indeed an epoch-making event in the history of Japanese art. It is especially appropriate, too, that this exhibition coincides with the centenary of the landing of Commodore Perry in Japan and the opening of relations between my country and the United States. Examples of the art of every period, from the 6th century down to the 19th century, are included, illustrating all phases of Japanese painting and sculpture. There are 77 paintings and 14 sculptures in all. Superb specimens of Buddhist painting and Yamato-e (native-style painting of Japan), black-and-white painting with examples by Sesshu and Sesson, as well as works of the various schools of the 17th century and later periods are exhibited, including paintings by Sotatsu and Korin. There is a variety of types of painting, such as sliding doors, folding screens, hanging and horizontal scrolls, and books and albums. Among the horizontal scrolls, which present stories and their illustrations alternately, will be found such rare works as the 12th century Ban Dainagon Scroll, illustrating the story of a courtier, who in 866 A.D., set fire to the gate of the Emperor's palace; the Animal Caricatures Scroll attributed to Toba Sojo; and the Heiji Monogatari Scroll (the story of the civil war of the Heiji Era), which are among the most celebrated Japanese works of art. Most of the exhibits have frequently been published in various books on Japanese art.

"The earliest sculptures in the exhibition, are a series of gilt-bronze Buddhist figures. One of these is inscribed with the date 606 A.D. They formed part of a group of statuettes once in the art collection of the Horyuji at Nara, one of the oldest of Japanese monasteries, founded early in the 7th century. This is the first occasion on which these statues have ever been lent from the Tokyo National Museum."

The exhibition has been assembled under the auspices of the Commission for Protection of Cultural Properties, Tokyo, of which the chairman is Mr. Seiichiro Takahashi, and the deputy chairman, Mr. Yukio Yashiro. The Commission worked in close cooperation with three representatives of American museums: Mr. Archibald Gibson Wenley, Director of the Freer Gallery of Art, Washington, chairman; Mr. Alan Priest, Curator of Far Eastern Art at The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; and Mr. Langdon Warner, formerly of the Fogg Art Museum, Harvard University, Cambridge. The two committees conferred in Japan during the past summer. Mr. John D. Rockefeller, III, President of the Japan Society, has also rendered valuable assistance both in the United States and in Japan. The cargo of art objects was transported from Japan to this country through the courtesy of the United States Navy.

Among the distinguished lenders to the exhibition is His Majesty the Emperor of Japan. Japanese official collections are represented by the Japanese Commission for the Protection of Cultural Properties, Tokyo National Museum, the Museum Yamato Bunka-kan, Nagao Museum, Nezu Museum, Hakutsuru Museum, Seikado Foundation, and the municipalities of Kyoto and Nagoya. Twenty-seven Buddhist monasteries and one Shinto Shrine have also lent works of art. Among the twenty-one private collectors who have loaned prized possessions to the exhibition are Mr. Ino Dan, Mr. Kunizo Hara, Mr. Takakimi Mitsui, Mr. Soichiro Ohara, and Mr. Kichizaemon Sumitomo. Of the exhibits, 18 paintings are registered by the Japanese Government as "National Treasures," while 45 paintings and 6 sculptures are classified as "Important Cultural Properties."

A 208 page catalogue of the exhibition, illustrating in color and black-and-white all the objects to be shown, with text and comments by the Japanese curators, will be on sale during the showing.

Patrons for the Exhibition are Their Imperial Highnesses, Prince and Princess Takamatsu.

The Honorary Committee for Japan includes the Prime Minister, the Ministers of Foreign Affairs, of Finance and of Education, as well as His Excellency, Eikichi Araki, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, and the Honorary President of the Japan-America Society, Mr. Aisuke Kabayama. The Honorary Committee for the United States comprises the Secretaries of State, of the Treasury, and of Defense, as well as His Excellency Robert D. Murphy, American Ambassador to Japan, the Honorable Joseph C. Grew, former American Ambassador to Japan, and Mr. John D. Rockefeller, III, President of the Japan Society.

Sponsors include officials of the Commission for Protection of Cultural Properties, Tokyo: Mr. Seiichiro Takahashi, Mr. Yukio Yashiro, Mr. Moritatsu Hosokawa, Mr. Naoto Ichimada, and Mr. Shozo Uchida; and the Committee of American Museum Directors: Mr. George H. Edgell, Director, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston; Mr. David E. Finley, Director, National Gallery of Art, Washington; Mr. Richard E. Fuller, President and Director, Seattle Art Museum; Mr. Daniel Catton Rich, Director, The Art Institute of Chicago; and Mr. Francis Henry Taylor, Director
The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.
