17th Jazz in the Garden Concert Series Kicks Off on May 19 at the National Gallery of Art Sculpture Garden

Concertgoers enjoy Jazz in the Garden while seated around the grand fountain in the National Gallery of Art Sculpture Garden.

Washington, DC—The widely popular Jazz in the Garden concert series at the National Gallery of Art Sculpture Garden begins its 17th season on May 19, 2017, with weekly performances on Fridays through August 25, 2017. The free concerts feature locally and nationally acclaimed musicians performing a wide variety of musical genres—Brazilian bluegrass, Dixieland, Czech jazz, Steel Pan Caribbean jazz, blues fusion, Brazilian jazz, soul, and more. Concerts take place every Friday evening from 5:00 to 8:30 in the Sculpture Garden, located between 7th and 9th Streets NW, along Constitution Avenue. The Michael Thomas Quintet performance on June 16 marks the eleventh year of collaboration between Jazz in the Garden and the DC Jazz Festival.

Musicians perform in front of the Pavilion Café, next to the grand fountain and reflecting pool, with eight jets that shoot water 20 feet into the air. Visitors enjoy free, live concerts amid the Gallery's collection of large-scale sculpture by renowned modern and contemporary artists such as Louise Bourgeois, Marc Chagall, Hector Guimard, Robert Indiana, Ellsworth Kelly, Sol LeWitt, Roy Lichtenstein, Joan Miró, Claes Oldenburg and Coosje van Bruggen, Roxy Paine, Robert Indiana, Tony Smith, and others.

The relaxed, verdant, garden setting and friendly atmosphere have made Jazz in the Garden a favorite Friday evening destination for Washingtonians and visitors of all ages. Concertgoers may enjoy performances from seating around the rim of the grand central fountain, on one of the marble benches, inside the Pavilion Café with its panoramic view of the Sculpture Garden, on one of the patios outside the Café, or from their own blankets spread on designated areas of the beautifully landscaped 6.1-acre Sculpture Garden grounds.
