PROGRAM

I
Richard Bales ........................................Songs from Shakespeare (1938-41) (b. 1915)

Two Gentlemen of Verona – Who is Sylvia?
Twelfth Night – O Mistress Mine!
Come Away, Come Away, Death
Hey Ho, the Wind and the Rain

II
Claude Debussy ..................Songs from Ariettes Oubliées (Paul Verlaine) (1862-1918)

C'est l'extase:
This is languorous ecstasy. This is sensual weariness. Say it is mine and yours, so softly on this mild evening.

Green:
With my offerings of fruits and flowers I come to you with my heart also. Let me dream, be soothed after the good storm and then sleep.

Il pleure dans mon coeur:
Tears fall in my heart like the rains upon the city. I know not why, without love or hate, my heart bears so much pain.

Chevaux de Bois:
The merry-go-round turns round and round suggesting events in the lives of the wooden horses.

III
Joaquin Rodrigo ..................De los álamos vengo, madre (b. 1902)
I've come from the poplars of Seville, mother, from visiting my lover.

Fernando Obradors ..................Del cabello más sutil (1897-1945)
From your hair I'll weave a chain to draw you to my side. Would I were a pitcher of water to kiss your lips when you drink.

Joaquin Turina ..........................Cantares (1882-1949)
Alas, I feel nearest you when farthest away. Yesterday I was enchanted, as I listened to you but heard nothing, gazed but saw not.

IV
Hugo Wolf ..................Songs from the Italienisches Liederbuch (1860-1903)

Auch kleine Dinge:
Even little things delight us . . . Pearls, so costly and so small; the olive fruit, so good; and the rose, so sweet.

Mein Liebster hat zu Tische mich geladen:
My sweethear invited me to dinner. There was no fireplace, no pans, no wine, no glasses . . . only a narrow table, bread like stone and blunt knives.

Wenn du, mein Liebster:
When you, my beloved, rise to heaven, I will come to you and the Lord will join our hearts together in the flame of Paradise.

Ich hab' in Penna:
I have a lover living in Penna. (I have lovers in many towns.) Four in La Fratta, ten in Castiglione!

V
Sir William Walton ..................A Song for the Lord Mayor's Table (b. 1902)
The Lord Mayor's Table (Thomas Jordan)
Glide Gently (William Wordsworth)
Wapping Old Stairs (Anonymous)
Holy Thursday (William Blake)
The Contrast (Charles Morris)
Thyme (Anonymous 18th Century)

This concert is broadcast by Station WGMS 570 AM and 103.5 FM.

Xavier Montsalvatge .......Canción de cuna para dormir a un negrito (b. 1912)
A lullaby to the frightened little one with a round head like a coffee bean . . . not a slave, but in a long while to become a groom.

Fernando Obradors ..........................................................El vito (1897-1945)
An old woman is worth a “real”; a lass, two quarters. I go for cheaper . . . singing . . . stop tickling . . I blush.
