with Schumann's Carnaval. The composer drifts from one room of the exhibition to another, hence the recurring Promenades. While Ravel's orchestrated version of Pictures at an Exhibition is better known today, it is not considered an improvement over Mussorgsky's original piano edition, which is in its own right a masterpiece.

- Program notes by Elmer Booze

February 1998
15  Kolja Blacher, violinist
    Jessica Krash, pianist
    Schumann: Sonata in A Minor
    Prokofiev: Sonata No. 1
    Brahms: Sonata in A Major
    Ravel: Oiseaux tristes from Miroirs
    Tzigane

22  Talich String Quartet
    Beethoven: Quartet, Opus 131
    Mozart: Quartet in D Major
    Janáček: Quartet No. 1

March 1998
1  National Gallery Orchestra
    George Manos, conductor
    Delius: On Hearing the First Cuckoo in Spring
    Dvořák: Scherzo capriccioso
    Schumann: Symphony No. 1

The Fifty-sixth Season of THE WILLIAM NELSON CROMWELL and
F. LAMMOT BELIN CONCERTS

National Gallery of Art

The use of cameras or recording equipment during the performance is not allowed.

For the convenience of concertgoers the Garden Café remains open until 6:30 pm.

HUGH SUNG, pianist

Sunday Evening, February 8, 1998
at Seven O’Clock
West Building, West Garden Court

Admission Free
Muzio Clementi
Sonata in B-flat Major
(1752-1832)
Op. 24, No. 2 (1804)
Allegro con brio
Andante quasi allegretto
Rondo: Allegro assai

Maurice Ravel
Gaspard de la nuit
(1875-1937)
(1908)
Ondine
Le gibet
Scarbo

INTERMISSION

Modest Petrovich Mussorgsky
Pictures at an Exhibition
(1839-1881)
(1874)
Promenade
Gnomus
Promenade
The Old Castle
Promenade
In The Tuileries Gardens
Bydlo
Promenade
Ballet of the Unhatched Chicks

Samuel Goldenberg and Schmuyle
Promenade
The Market Place at Limoges
The Catacombs
The Hut on Fowl's Legs
The Great Gate of Kiev

Born in Philadelphia in 1968, HUGH SUNG began his piano studies with his mother at the age of three. At age eight he became a pupil of Eleanor Sokoloff and Susan Starr, and at eleven he appeared as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra. Upon entering the Curtis Institute of Music in 1982, Mr. Sung became a pupil of Jorge Bolet and Seymour Lipkin. Hugh Sung has performed as soloist in the United States, Canada, Japan, and Korea. He has won major prizes from the National Foundation for the Advancement of the Arts, and the 1991 Joanna Hodges International Piano Competition. Mr. Sung appeared at the National Gallery in 1996, in recital with violinist Aaron Rosand.

Clementi's Sonata in B-flat Major was first performed by the composer on Christmas Eve, 1781 in a program arranged by Emperor Joseph II of Austria. That concert also included Mozart playing some of his own works, having been devised as a contest between the two composers. In a letter to his father following the concert, Mozart criticized Clementi mercilessly, using such words as “charlatan” and “mechanical.” Mozart did not shrink from borrowing from the composer he found so inferior, however. The theme of the opening Allegro of the Clementi sonata became the principal theme of Mozart's Overture to The Magic Flute.

Gaspard de la nuit was written in 1908 and derived its title from the eponymous collection by Aloysius Louis Bertrand (1807-1841), an exponent of chimerical poetry who was held in awe by Baudelaire and Mallarmé. Bertrand attributed the poems in the collection to the devil, alias Gaspard. Ravel's desire was to “write a piano piece that is even harder to play than Mily Balakirev's oriental fantasy, Islamey.” Each of the three pieces teems with Herculean requirements: double notes that are effervescent and unrelenting (Ondine); repeated bell-like notes, requiring extraordinary control (Le gibet); and forward surging runs, creating an inexorable charge (Scarbo). Ravel creates in music the satanic elements inherent in all three poems: Ondine, a water nymph with her contemptuous laughter; Le gibet, a bell tolling at sunset as a corpse hangs from the gallows (Ravel's paraphrase); and Scarbo, a goblin appearing as a frightening apparition. One French writer observed: “[The pieces] are not atmospheric portraits in the style of Liszt or Schumann, but psychological case studies, observed and recorded with the incorruptibility of an analyst.”

Deeply moved by the death of his friend, the stage designer, artist, and architect Victor Hartmann, Mussorgsky wrote Pictures at an Exhibition in the space of just one month. Having visited a memorial exhibition of Hartmann's paintings, the composer gave a musical impression of the various pictures (a comparison could be made...