The Musicians

The Ma'lot Quintet was founded in 1986 and quickly gained international recognition after winning four first prizes in major music festivals: Deutscher Musikrat, Bonn; Jeunesse Musical, Belgrade; Martigny, Switzerland; and the Munich ARD Competition (Arbeitsgemeinschaft der öffentlich-rechtlichen Rundfunkanstalten der Bundesrepublik Deutschland). Though its repertoire ranges from the classics to contemporary material, the Ma'lot Quintet especially champions new music, often in close collaboration with living composers, introducing audiences to new sounds and ideas and thereby expanding the chamber music repertoire. In addition, the ensemble also presents arrangements specially prepared for them by its members Ulf-Guido Schäfer and Volker Grewel. All members of the ensemble hold positions in major German orchestras or serve as professors at German music schools.

The ensemble regularly appears in the major concert halls of Germany and has been invited to many of Europe's capitals, including Amsterdam, Athens, Belgrade, Berlin, Bern, Dublin, Istanbul, Lisbon, London, and Vienna. It has made extended tours throughout Austria, Belgium, Cyprus, Greece, Luxembourg, and Turkey. Recent festival engagements include the Beethovenfest Bonn, the Bodensee Festival, Kissinger Sommer, and the Kuhmo, Mozartfest Augsburg, and Rheingau music festivals. In North America, the ensemble has performed in Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, and New York City.

The Ma'lot Quintet has made six critically-acclaimed recordings for Glissando, and now records exclusively for the MDG label. Its CD of chamber works by Dvořák won the 2005 Echo Klassik prize, and its Piazzolla recording, Tangos für Bläserquintett, was released in 2006. The Quintet appears at the National Gallery by arrangement with Shupp Artists Management of Port Jefferson, New York.

The Composers

Felix Mendelssohn was born on February 3, 1809. With “Mendelssohn on the Mall,” the Library of Congress, the National Academy of Sciences, and the National Gallery of Art join musical presenters around the world in celebrating the bicentennial of the birth of a composer whose works have become essential to the Western canon. Art historians and cultural historians alike are fascinated by Mendelssohn because he was a “Renaissance man” who developed skills in many areas to a highly sophisticated level, including drawing and painting, sports, and writing. He was lionized in his own time as a composer, conductor, and performer, and the world mourned his untimely death in 1847 at age 38.

Until the late nineteenth century, it was a tradition to arrange operas and symphonies for wind ensembles. This so-called Harmoniemusik made the music from large productions available to a wider audience. Mendelssohn composed incidental music for an 1843 production of William Shakespeare’s A Midsummer Night’s Dream with a full pit orchestra in mind. In this arrangement for woodwind quintet, Ulf-Guido Schäfer recreates the old tradition of reducing the original orchestration to an ensemble of five wind players. The character and virtuosity of the woodwinds convey the atmosphere of a fantastic midsummer night’s dream even more effectively than the full orchestra does. The arrangement does not include Mendelssohn’s original overture, wedding march, or finale, and the order of movements differs from the original. The work takes the form of a serenade that immediately carries the listener into the affairs of the fairy kingdom.

Born in Transylvania to Hungarian-speaking Jewish parents, György Sándor Ligeti was educated at the Kolozsvár Conservatory. After enduring severe hardships during World War II, including the death of his father and brother in concentration camps, he went on, like his countrymen Bartók and Kodály before him, to pursue research in folk music, particularly that of Romania. He is considered to be one of the outstanding avant-garde composers of the twentieth century.

Ligeti composed a set of eleven bagatelles (trifles) for piano solo in 1951. Two years later, he re-orchestrated six of them for wind quintet. In 1956 the Hungarian government banned a complete premiere of the opus, claiming that the chromaticism was dangerous to the public. Minimalistic yet intense would be the best way to describe these six short pieces. Most are no longer than two minutes in duration, and the longest is just over three minutes. Ligeti also paid homage to Bartók in these pieces, dedicating number five to him.

Samuel Barber was not a prolific composer of chamber music, and this single-movement work is his only wind quintet. Much of Barber’s music—Knoxville: Summer of 1915, for example—evokes a certain nostalgia, a longing for a past that cannot be relived, and Summer Music is one of these pieces. At times lackadaisical and drowsy, and at others full of energy and activity, it can be seen as a recollection of Barber’s adolescent days in the suburbs of Philadelphia.

Piazzolla’s Estaciones porteñas is a composition depicting the four seasons in Buenos Aires. The pieces were originally composed as individual works, with relatively large spaces of time separating the composition of one from the next. In addition to the version for piano by Piazzolla himself and various arrangements, there is a version that he wrote for his own quintet for the bandoneon, violin, guitar, piano, and double bass. The arrangement for wind quintet follows the lead of these animated and passionate Piazzolla documents: the spring with its tempestuous animation and the oppressive humidity in the summer. In contrast to the Estaciones porteñas, Histoire du Tango is a work for a set instrumentation. Originally composed for flute and guitar, it offers a highly atmospheric overview of the development of the tango. In Café, which revives the tango of the 1930s, the music conveys unfulfilled yearnings and a melancholy world-weariness.

Scott Joplin, the “King of Ragtime,” is best known for being the first composer to develop the genre. Born in Texas and raised there and in the Midwest, Joplin showed a talent for playing the piano at a young age. After years of studying piano, harmony, and theory, he found his niche playing in dance halls and brothels. He combined elements of European classical music with African rhythms and Creole sounds to make his piano rags uniquely American.
