Abstract	The papers document National Gallery of Art founding benefactor, businessman, and art collector Lessing J. Rosenwald's acquisition and exhibition activities relating to his print and drawing collection. Materials consist of correspondence, subject files, accession cards, scrapbooks, lecture notes, and photographs.

Biographical Note

Lessing Julius Rosenwald (1891-1979), was an American businessman, art collector, and philanthropist. Born in Chicago, Rosenwald was the eldest son of Julius Rosenwald (1862-1932), who was part-owner of Sears, Roebuck and Company. Lessing attended Cornell University and then went to work for Sears. He married Edith Goodkind in 1913 and they had five children together. In 1932, Rosenwald succeeded his father as chairman of Sears, serving until 1939 when he dedicated himself full-time to his art collection and his family charities, chiefly the Julius Rosenwald Fund which supported African American educational opportunities.

Rosenwald began collecting prints in the mid-1920s and purchased works by master artists such as Rembrandt, Albrecht Durer, and William Blake. He started collecting rare books several years later. His art collection grew to encompass works from medieval times to the present and it was regarded as the finest and most comprehensive of its kind to be formed in the United States by an individual.

Motivated to share his art collection to the public, Rosenwald gave his first gift of 30 prints to the National Gallery of Art in 1941 when the museum opened. Two years later, he donated his collection of prints, paintings, and sculpture, which then consisted of 6,500 works, and related materials, to the National Gallery, reserving the right to add to the collection. His gift immediately elevated the National Gallery's small print and drawings collection to become the most preeminent in the country. At the same time, he donated his collection of rare books and related material to the Library of Congress. Rosenwald later served as a National Gallery trustee from 1964-1974.

As prescribed by his 1943 deed of gift, Rosenwald retained the bulk of his art and book collection at his home, Alverthorpe, in Jenkintown, Pennsylvania (outside of Philadelphia) during his lifetime. At Alverthorpe, he opened an art gallery and study rooms for visitors. Rosenwald's print curators included Elizabeth Mongan (1937-1963), Alan Shestack (1965-1966), and Ruth Fine (1972-1980), all of whom later worked at the National Gallery of Art.

After Rosenwald's death in 1979, his art collection numbered more than 28,000 works. Alverthorpe Gallery then closed and the Rosenwald prints and drawings collection moved to the National Gallery along with his papers relating to his collection and the Alverthorpe Gallery. His rare books and personal papers were transferred to the Library of Congress.

Scope and Content

These papers document the acquisition of the Rosenwald Collection of prints and drawings and the activities of Alverthorpe Gallery. They primarily consist of subject files relating to developing, maintaining, and exhibiting Rosenwald's print and drawing collection, and include correspondence with dealers, institutions, and organizations. In addition, there are files and photographs concerning exhibitions of works from his collection and his art purchases. Rosenwald's writings and talks on graphic arts in general and his newspaper clipping scrapbooks on his collection are also included.

Series Descriptions

Series 1: Subject Chronological Files, 1922-1981 (166 boxes)

This series documents Rosenwald's activities developing, maintaining, and exhibiting his print and drawing collection, and includes correspondence with dealers, institutions, and organizations. Files dating from 1922-1936 are arranged in chronological order by year. Beginning in 1937, the files for each year were subdivided into three categories: Miscellaneous, Institutions, and Dealers. Miscellaneous files include correspondence concerning insurance, memberships in organizations, announcements of exhibitions, supplies for Alverthorpe Gallery, and files of the curators of Alverthorpe. Institutions files include correspondence between Rosenwald or the Alverthorpe curator and various institutions regarding exhibitions and donations, including extensive correspondence between Rosenwald and the National Gallery, as well as the Library of Congress. Dealers files include correspondence about prints, drawings, or books acquired by Rosenwald.

Series 2: Art and Artists Reference Files, circa 1931-1981 (2 boxes)

This series consists of correspondence, lists, notes, and drafts of papers or articles pertaining to specific artists, works, or topics of interest in graphic arts.

Series 3: Exhibition Files, 1929-1962 (bulk 1929-1937) (5 boxes, oversize)

This series consists mainly of correspondence pertaining to exhibitions of the Rosenwald Collection. Checklists, catalogs, and brochures are included. Files are arranged chronologically by exhibition, most dating from 1929-1937.

Series 4: Alverthorpe Accession Logs and Cards, 1937-1973 (1 box, 8 card files)

This series documents Rosenwald's purchases. Materials include accession logs and related card files. Of interest is information about Rosenwald's purchases from art dealer, Charles Sessler.

Series 5: Talks, Writings, and Notes, circa 1950-1973 (1 box)

This series consists of notes prepared for talks given by Rosenwald and some related transcripts.

Series 6: Scrapbooks, 1937-1962 (13 boxes)

This series consists of bound scrapbooks containing newspaper clippings about the Rosenwald Collection and they are arranged chronologically.

Series 7: Memorabilia, circa 1930s-1960s (1 box)

This series consists of memorabilia collected by Rosenwald, mostly related to the National Gallery. Included are bookplates, a commemorative exhibition catalog, copper plates, and a rubber ink stamp.

Series 8: Exhibitions and Events Photographs, 1929-1979 (3 boxes)

This series consists of images organized chronologically, mainly documenting exhibition installations and openings. Images have been digitized and are available to researchers.

Series 9: People and Places Photographs, 1926-1970 (1 box)

This series consists of images organized alphabetically and document Alverthorpe and people, including artists Harry Hoehn, Jasper Johns, Arthur Flory, J.L. Forain, and Ansei Uchima. Images have been digitized and are available to researchers.
